SATURDAY EVEN'G., DECEMBER 27.

THE BRIDAL TOUR. Young Spriggles and his Aramatha Jane had just been married, and were going upon their bridal tour. They didn't know whether, upon their return, they should board "the old folks," or take rooms at a private hotel. Being only a clerk, Spriggles' means were limited, and he could not expect much at first in the way of "Of course," he said to old Bolger, a wealthy member of the firm who had kindly granted "Of course," he said to old Bolger, a wealthy member of the firm who had kindly granted him three weeks' leave of absence, "we must be in style, you know. rusher when you were married.

"A rusher?"

"I mean you took an extensive one, and showed your wife the sights." "Yes," said Bolger, with a ned. "I'll tell you about it. I made long preparations for my bridal tour, and the girl that was to become my wife helped me. We had it all fixed, and everything laid out beforehand. I worked for it hard, and she worked for it too. It was to it hard, and she worked for it too. It was to be the grand event of our lives and we wanted it to be a success. We felt that as the new life opened, so should it continue. I was earning five hundred dollars a year. That was good pay for a salesman five-and-thirty years agobetter than three times that amount now as things go. We were married in the morning at the house of my wife's father. Then we rode two miles to the substantial cottage I had secured for a home, My money had made the nished three rooms in it. "And we ate our first meal thereafter in our own house; and I went thence to my work and my wife set about her work. It was the new life and we determined to succeed if possible. And in that effort was our joy. And in the suc-cess that followed was unalloyed happiness. In less than three years my house was paid for and my home was my own. Come storm or come sunshine, we had a roof to cover us—a roof from which the hand of man could not turn us.

"I doubt, young man, if ever a bridal tour was happier or more profitable than was mine; and I knew that Mary enjoyed it with me, and I knew the exercise of house-keeping upon her own account was invigorating and healthful. But then we married for real earnest living and loving. We believed we should find life's purest joy in the discharge of life's sacred duties.
